Student Handbook

Welcome to graduate study in the Department of Hispanic Studies at Texas A&M University. We hope that your time with us will be productive and that your experience will prepare you for the career you wish to pursue.

To guide you through the various steps that lead to a Ph.D. in Hispanic Studies, we offer this Graduate Student Handbook. In it you'll find program descriptions, a list of requirements needed to obtain your degree, and other pertinent information.

About this Handbook

This handbook has been developed to serve as a reference source that will provide information about graduate study in the Department of Hispanic Studies. It is compiled from several documents from different university departments. Our handbook should be used as a supplement to the following University publications:

- the Texas A&M Graduate Catalog (<http://catalog.tamu.edu>)
- the University's Student Rules (<http://student-rules.tamu.edu>)
- the Texas A&M Graduate Student Handbook (<http://ogs.tamu.edu/>)
- the Thesis Manual (<http://thesis.tamu.edu/>).

Please note that although we have done our best to provide accurate information, this is a living document and items contained herein may change as requirements change at the department (where requirements may exceed university requirements), college, and university levels.

How to Use this Handbook

This handbook is structured according to a timeline. Please make sure you read the first section to obtain a broad understanding of what is required of you during your studies here. In this first section, you will see certain often-used terms defined.

The remainder of the sections will be sorted according to the items on the timeline and each step will be described in further detail.

Doctor of Philosophy in Hispanic Studies

The Department of Hispanic Studies currently offers the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) degree in Hispanic Studies. The MA program is no longer admitting new students. Please read the following pages to gain a broad understanding of your program requirements.

Executive Summary

The Ph.D. student will take a number of courses for the degree, work on a thesis proposal and complete a Preliminary Examination. Following successful passing of the examination, the student is “admitted to candidacy.”

In addition, the student will need to satisfy a number of requirements (either before or during his/her studies here). Examples of these requirements include but are not limited to English proficiency, competence in a third language besides English and Spanish, and submission of online forms for exams and/or theses.

Upon his/her arrival, the student will meet with the DGS to discuss the following: times limits for degree completion; English certification requirements; foreign language requirement; transfer credit procedures; academic and residency requirements; and professional development.

On the second semester the DGS, in consultation with the student, will assigned him or her a temporary Guidance Committee until an Advisory Committee is formed on the fourth semester.

Temporary Guidance Committee: The temporary Guidance Committee will consist of the DGS and at least three faculties of different fields of concentrations. The Guidance Committee will stand until the Advisory Committee is formed, not later than the end of the fourth semester.

Advisory Committee: By the end of the fourth semester the student must have established an Advisory Committee, which will assist him/her to assure progress and plans to satisfy requirements prior to graduation. The Advisory Committee is selected by the student and is composed of a Committee Chair and of at least three other professors, including an external member. The advisory committee will ensure progress through the program and assist the student in proper planning to satisfy requirements prior to graduation. The advisory committee is selected by the student and is composed of the chair who is the main responsible faculty in foreseeing the reading list, preparation and organization of preliminary exams, proposal and writing dissertation. The advisory committee will be composed of the chair, and at least three other faculty members (see detailed description below).

After the student achieves admission to candidacy, s/he will research and prepare a dissertation (thesis) which is a significant written work on a particular topic. The thesis will be prepared and a final examination or dissertation defense will be held.

To help guide the student through this process, we have developed the following checklist. It is not necessarily exhaustive, but will bring up the most common issues facing a typical student. If you have a specific question not clearly explained in this document, please refer to the DGS.

Glossary of Terms (by alphabetical order)

Admission to Candidacy:

Advisory Committee – Group of faculty that guides students in their degree.

Degree Application – There is a formal process required to apply for your degree. See the OGAPS website for online petitions and requirements: <http://ogs.tamu.edu>

Degree Plan – A list of courses taken to fulfill the Ph.D. requirements. The plan is approved by the Advisory Committee.

Guidance Committee – Consists of the DGS and at least three faculty members of different fields of concentration. Its purpose is to give advice to the student during the second and third semester of his/her studies. It will be assigned in consultation with the student.

OGAPS – Office of Graduate and Professional Studies

Preliminary Exam – A comprehensive examination covering a reading list which is required before advancing to candidacy. Linguistics students will have the option of taking a preliminary exam or of submit a Major Area Paper (MAP).

Professional Development – Activities beyond normal coursework to prepare the student for work life after the Ph.D.

Reading list – A list of texts that the student will study to prepare for the Preliminary Examination.

Thesis/Dissertation – An original research project ending with a significant written document. Thesis/Dissertation defense (or Final Examination) – An oral examination on the contents of the thesis.

TIMELINE

Task	Time Frame
Meet with DGS to do the following:
Discuss time limits for degree completion	First Semester
Discuss and plan how to meet English Language proficiency certification (International Students only)
Discuss foreign language requirement
Discuss transfer credit procedures
Discuss academic requirements
Discuss residency requirements
Discuss professional development
Establish a Guidance Committee
Begin preparing a degree plan
Establish an Advisory Committee no later than fourth semester.	As soon as the Committee is established but no later than Fourth Semester
Discuss Preliminary Exam topics and reading list (Literature and Cultural Studies students) with advisory Committee
Discuss topic of Major Area Paper (Linguistics students)
Discuss possible thesis topics
Set a schedule to meet regularly with all members of the committee
Meet with Advisory Committee and:
Define areas of emphasis within Reading List for Preliminary Examination. The Chair of the Graduate Committee is expected to request questions from the members of the committee two months in advance. (Literature and Cultural Studies students)	After completion of coursework but no later than Sixth Semester
Define topic of Major Area Paper. (Linguistics students)
Prepare and submit a thesis proposal to the Thesis office (due 14 weeks prior to final examination/dissertation defense, but preferably not later than the seventh semester)
Meet with the DGS and:

Discuss admission to candidacy	3 months prior to sitting for the Preliminary Examination
Complete foreign language requirement
Meet with the Advisory Committee and:
Prepare and submit request for permission to hold final examination	During Final Semester
Meet with the DGS and:
Apply for your degree	During Final Semester
Finish dissertation; defend dissertation (defense = final examination)
Submit final dissertation to the Thesis Office

Details for the Doctor of Philosophy in Hispanic Studies

The Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Hispanic Studies gives students a comprehensive knowledge of the field of Hispanic Studies as well as training in methods of research. This is an interdisciplinary Ph.D. cooperative program that is grounded in a solid knowledge of the language, culture, and literature of Spanish-speaking peoples and is designed to meet the needs of students.

The Three Areas of Concentration

While the program is based on a broad knowledge of the Hispanic world, students must choose one of the three areas of concentration as follows:

- 1) The Hispanic Literature concentration emphasizes the points of contact and divergence of the different Hispanic literary traditions. Students will engage with authors and works from Spain, Latin America and the United States among others in order to acquire a solid knowledge of the main trends and periods of and theoretical approaches to Hispanic Literatures. Students in interdisciplinary courses that bridge national and hemispheric boundaries will be able to analyze transnational and borderland literary developments within and outside the Hispanic world. Students in this concentration will demonstrate an ample yet flexible knowledge of Hispanic, transatlantic, and transnational literatures required in the twenty first century.

- 2) The Linguistics concentration allows students to explore the historical, geographical and social diversity of the Spanish language, and issues related to its structure and acquisition and learning. Coursework and fields of inquiry typically include, but are not limited to linguistic variation, dialectology, bilingualism, language contact, instructed second language acquisition, psycholinguistics, and cognitive linguistics, and paleography. Training in this concentration includes quantitative and qualitative methods of data collection and analysis and incorporates current linguistic theory. This concentration prepares critical scholars and researchers to work in an increasingly diverse linguistic academic context where heritage learners are quickly becoming the norm, and where there is a growing recognition of U.S. Spanish as a legitimate variety.

3) The Visual/Cultural Studies concentration offers strategies of theoretical and critical analysis for the study of a variety of topics relevant to the cultural practices and traditions of the Hispanic world. Visual Studies acknowledge the predominance given to visualization in a variety of social and political arenas, and the experience of cross-mediation in media, communication, and information. It aims to expose students to the latest practices, interventions, and discussions in the field, helping them to achieve scholarly proficiency. Cultural Studies emphasizes the study of Hispanic cultural production which includes but is not limited to literature and literary studies. Students are exposed in an interdisciplinary manner to salient aspects of the diverse Hispanic cultural legacy, such as the rich oral traditions of the U.S. Southwest, or the different cultures, languages, religions, and music of Latin America and the Iberian Peninsula. Visual/Cultural Studies engage students with theoretical concepts and perspectives from a range of disciplines, including media studies, film, photography, digital studies, cultural studies, history, art, theater, anthropology, sociology, gender studies, performance, psychoanalysis, and political culture and thought.

Although the curriculum for the Ph.D. in Hispanic Studies features these three distinct concentrations, one of the special characteristics of the program is that the three concentrations complement one another. Thus, a student concentrating in Visual/Cultural Studies may want to take one or more courses in Literature, since the study of culture cannot be divorced from the literary texts that a culture produces. Likewise, a student concentrating on Literature may want to take courses on linguistics and dialects from the Linguistics concentration. In short, this is an integrated Ph.D. cooperative program where courses associated with one concentration are associated with the other two concentrations as well. Doctoral students, in consultation with the DGS and advisory committee, will be free to build their curriculum as their individual needs, career goals, and interests lead them.

Advisory Committee

A doctoral advisory committee must consist of at least four members of the University's graduate faculty. At least one of the members must be from outside Hispanic Studies up to a maximum of two. For students at TAMIU and TAMUK, the chair of the committee will be a HISP faculty member on the College Station campus, as will the majority of the members of the advisory committee. Students' committee chair is responsible for immediate supervision of their research and thesis and the organization of the committee's required meetings and any other deemed necessary. The committee is responsible for overseeing: 1) the proposed degree plan, 2) the preliminary examination (for Linguistics students, the major area paper), 3) the dissertation proposal, 4) the dissertation, and 5) the dissertation defense.

Degree Plan

The DGS and the members of the advisory committee will help you prepare a degree plan, which lists the courses you must take to fulfill your degree requirements. The general field of research for the dissertation should be agreed upon by you and your advisory committee so that you can select the proper courses to support your proposed research.

All degree plans must be submitted using the On-Line Degree Plan Submission System (<https://ogsdps.tamu.edu/>) and are not final until all advisory committee members and the DGS submit electronic signatures. You must complete and file the degree plan with OGAPS following the deadline imposed by the OGAPS calendar.

Degree Requirements and Courses

Depending on your academic background, the Ph.D. can take between 64 and 96 credit hours. The summary of the degree requirements is as follows:

For students entering the program with a B.A. degree:

Additional hours (additional courses, dissertation hours)	32 hours

Please note that this list does not account for special topics courses taught in HISP or by other departments. Always discuss your choice of courses with the DGS and your advisory committee before enrolling to ensure that your selection can be applied to your degree plan. You will need to petition such courses for use on your degree plan.

Outside courses in HISP-related areas (15 hours), Students are required to take at least two courses taught outside the Department in consultation with the chair of the advisory committee. It is encouraged to take more courses outside the department if needed, always in consultation with the chair of the advisory committee. Taking courses in other departments is important when considering that one of the four members of your advisory committee must be (and up to two may be) from outside of HISP. Taking courses outside of HISP will provide an opportunity to engage potential advisory committee members. PLEASE NOTE: this representative list is not exhaustive; it is merely designed to give you some idea of what outside courses might be useful or appealing to combine with your HISP courses for an interdisciplinary Hispanic Studies degree.

Courses outside the department (6 to 12 hours)

You may choose, in consultation with your advisory committee, from two to four courses from any of those listed in the concentration areas above or other courses appropriate to your academic field of study. These courses must be selected in consultation with the DGS.

400-level Courses

Ph.D. students may include up to two 400-level courses on their degree plans. Typically these courses will be in interdisciplinary programs which do not offer graduate degrees, but may offer a certificate which is a desirable credential to have when you enter the job market (examples are Women's and Gender Studies, Film Studies, or Africana Studies). As with all courses, your choice must be discussed with the DGS who must approve your degree plan. The choice of 400-level courses must also be discussed with the chair of the Advisory Committee if it has been established. It is expected that Ph.D. students in a 400-level class will exceed the workload assigned to undergraduate students in these classes.

Independent Study Courses (HISP 685)

In the Department of Hispanic Studies, 685 courses are special courses calling for individual work to meet specific needs of a specific student. 685s are NOT for general use as electives and must apply directly to a student's chosen area of concentration. Unless deemed absolutely necessary, students should avoid independent study courses when a seminar covering a similar subject exists. A student wishing to enroll in a 685 must have a specific reason for taking this approach rather than a regular course, such as the need to enroll in summer when no departmental seminars are offered. Students should be aware, however, that most professors are not paid over the summer and should not be asked to direct independent studies unless they are on summer contracts. No more than two 685s can be listed on a Ph.D. degree plan with the exception of students who need to take more during the summer semester.

To request a HISP 685 course, students must find a faculty member willing to guide them in their independent study and must provide the DGS with a contract explaining the details of the work to be done. (See Appendix D for HISP 685 contract form.)

Prerequisites are:

1. Permission of the supervising faculty member
2. Approval of the Director of Graduate Studies

It is further understood that:

1. Individual consultation and agreement between student and faculty will precede the formal, written request.
2. There will be regular meetings between the student and the faculty supervisor as agreed upon at the beginning of the project.

3. Although clock hours are not absolute, limiting or monitored, a general guideline is the expenditure of a minimum of 45 clock hours per semester hour of credit requested. This includes actual student-faculty contact hours as well as the time a student spends preparing for regularly scheduled meetings.

Dissertation hours: HISP 691 (a minimum of 19 hours)

You must take a minimum of 19 dissertation hours (HISP 691). It is expected that you take these hours to undertake research and write the dissertation. Normally 691 hours will be taken no sooner than the semester of your preliminary exams. You may register for a single credit hour only during the last semester before you plan to graduate.

Admission to Candidacy

To be admitted to candidacy for a doctoral degree you must have a cumulative GPR of at least 3.00, satisfy the English and third language requirements, pass the preliminary exam, complete all formal coursework on the degree plan, and have an approved dissertation proposal on file with OGAPS. You must be admitted to candidacy well before the date of the final exam. OGAPS will not authorize a final examination for any doctoral student who has not been admitted to candidacy.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY VERIFICATION

All international graduate students whose native language is not English must meet minimum English proficiency standards.

To achieve admission, international graduate students must attain English proficiency verification.

Citizens of certain English speaking countries are exempt from the verification requirement. Refer to the list on the Office of Admissions website.

English Proficiency Verification can be attained using the following:

- a TOEFL score of at least 80 on TOEFL iBT (550 paper-based), or
- an IELTS score of at least 6.0, or
- a GRE Verbal Reasoning score of at least 146 (400 on the old scale), or
- a GMAT Verbal score of at least 22, or
- a PTE Academic score of at least 53, or
- acquiring alternative verification during the admission process from the Office of Graduate and Professional Studies via a departmental request. An international graduate student holding a master's degree from an accredited institution located in the U.S. qualifies for alternative verification.

ENGLISH PROFICIENCY CERTIFICATION

To become eligible to teach in positions such as Graduate Assistant-Teaching, Instructor, Lecturer, etc., the State of Texas requires that international graduate students attain English proficiency certification. The State of Texas requires that you obtain English proficiency certification before you can serve as a GAT, regardless of the subject matter taught.

Eligibility levels for international graduate students serving in teaching positions:

Level 1: Students eligible for teaching assignments

Level 2: Students conditionally eligible for teaching assignments for one semester only, but must simultaneously participate in Center for Teaching Excellence English Language Proficiency (CTE-ELP) instruction and achieve a certifying score on the oral section of the ELPE by the end of the semester.

Level 3: Students not eligible for teaching assignment. Students should participate in spoken language training (such as those offered by CTE-ELP or other independent English language instruction providers) to assist them in meeting English language proficiency requirements

			Global Standardized Tests	Locally Administered (on Texas A&M campus) Exam
Level #	TOEFL speaking section	IELTS speaking section	PTE speaking section	ELPE oral exam
1	26-30	>=8.0	>=85	80
2	23-25	7.0-7.5	75-84	75
2	<23	<7.0	<75	65

Foreign Language Requirement

For the Ph.D. in Hispanic Studies, students must also demonstrate proficiency in a language other than English and Spanish. This requirement can be met in one of four ways, and must be completed before scheduling the preliminary examination:

1. By being a native speaker of the language in question.
2. By taking a translation exam (dictionary allowed)
3. By passing a 300-level course in the target language with a “A” or better.
4. By passing one of the graduate-level reading courses with an “B”.

The translation exam in option (2) above must be set up by the student in conjunction with a faculty member approved by the Advisory Committee. This faculty member must be a professor in the target language or must be a native speaker of said language. In some cases, there may be faculty in Hispanic Studies with native knowledge of languages other than English and Spanish who could help with this process. The College of Liberal Arts occasionally sends out calls for students needing third language exams to be administered. When this option exists, it should be taken.

Preliminary Examination

At the end of the semester following completion of the formal coursework for the degree plan, but before submitting their dissertation proposal, all students must demonstrate competencies in their content area. This can be done in one of two ways, i.e., through a preliminary examination or through a major area paper.

Literature and culture students will be required to take an examination including both general and specific topics. Linguistics students will have the option of taking a preliminary exam or of submit a Major Area Paper (MAP).

The preliminary examination has a written portion and an oral portion. Prior to scheduling the preliminary exam with the other committee members, the committee chair will ensure that you are eligible for the examination. The following list of eligibility requirements applies:

- Student is registered at Texas A&M University for the term during which any portion of the preliminary exam may fall. If the entire exam falls between semesters, the student must be registered for the term immediately preceding the exam.
- An approved degree plan must be submitted to the Office of Graduate and Professional Studies prior to the first written examination.
- Student's cumulative and degree plan GPR must each be at least 3.000.
- Any English language proficiency requirements must have been satisfied.
- The third language requirement must have been satisfied.

The chair will report the results of the exam to OGAPS using the Report of Doctoral Preliminary Examination form, with the signatures of all committee members, and the Preliminary Examination Checklist. These forms must be submitted to OGAPS within 10 working days of the scheduled oral exam date and at least 14 weeks prior to the date of the final exam. It is the student's responsibility to print these forms, bring them to the exam, and obtain any absent or substitute committee members' signatures.

I. The Exam

The Preliminary Examination is composed of the following parts:

1. Area of Concentration (4-hour written exam)

The student chooses one of the following major areas of concentration:

- (1) Culture
- (2) Literature
- (3) Linguistics (chosen in place of MAP)

This four-hour written exam on the student's chosen area of concentration is comprised of two parts, as follows:

Part I: a two-hour exam meant to demonstrate a broad knowledge of the chosen area of concentration. If the student chooses to major in Culture, for example, she/he is responsible for knowing cultural nuances in terms specific to the Hispanic world.

Part II: a two-hour exam meant to demonstrate knowledge –theoretical, critical, and historical– of a particular aspect of the major area of concentration. For example, a student studying Literature may choose to focus this one-hour exam on 19th century Spanish literature. or a student concentrating in Linguistics may choose to focus on second language acquisition.

2. Reading List Examination (3-hour written exam)

This three-hour written exam covers the reading list required for all Ph.D. students. See Appendix E and F for the approved Reading Lists for each specific area.

Questions for this portion of the exam will be based on whichever titles from the general reading list are deemed most relevant for a student’s intellectual program, as determined by the student’s faculty Advisory Committee.

3. Oral Exam

The oral exam is approximately 2 hours long and includes discussion of the written exams and texts included in the reading list. At the conclusion of the oral exam, the committee will issue an oral evaluation about the exams and inform the student if s/he has been advanced to candidacy or if one or more parts of the exam must be retaken.

Procedures:

- The chair of the advisory committee will organize and supervise the preliminary exams.
- The written portions of the exam will generally be in Spanish, except when responding to questions in English formulated by non-HISP members of the Advisory Committee. For the benefit of non-HISP members of the committee, the oral portion may also take place in both languages as dictated by the questions.
- The written exams must be taken within one week and the oral exam scheduled within two weeks of the written exams. Even if the written exams are not satisfactory, the oral exam will still be held.
- Once the student has taken the written exams, the membership of the advisory committee will generally not be altered.
- The student must retake any part(s) of the exam deemed necessary within six months of the first exam.

Expected outcome: The Ph.D. preliminary examination requires that students demonstrate an advanced level of scholarly competence in their chosen area of concentration and in the general field of Hispanic Studies, not limited to the knowledge acquired through coursework and specific doctoral dissertation interest. The exam is thus designed to help students develop the following professional skills:

- 1) The ability to gather information independently and process it critically.
- 2) The capacity to express ideas in the form of written responses, and expand upon these in an intellectual dialogue with faculty during the oral exam.
- 3) The preliminary examination will allow for student competency to be proven in their area of concentration and Hispanic Studies at four levels:
 - a) Knowledge of topics, texts, authors and trends relevant to their area of concentration;
 - b) Familiarity with historical contexts and intellectual currents relevant to the above;
 - c) Ability to critically engage major secondary sources relevant to their chosen field of study; and
 - d) Capacity for theoretical discussion of issues or themes related to their chosen field.

Any student unable to demonstrate adequate capacity in any of these four areas will be subject to failure of the exam, and will be required to repeat it either in whole or in part. The preliminary examination can only be repeated once. The Ph.D. student advances to candidacy by passing the preliminary exam by a majority vote of the advisory committee. Please note that performance in coursework is independent of and will be evaluated apart from the Ph.D. preliminary examination.

A student who fails to pass any portion of the Ph.D. exam for a second time will be dismissed from the Ph.D. program. The options in this case are as follows:

- A student without an M.A. in Spanish can request to be placed in the M.A. program (HISP). This will allow the student to graduate with an M.A. in Hispanic Studies.
- A student with an M.A. in Hispanic Studies may seek transfer to a doctoral program in another department.

If you fail the preliminary exam, there is no obligation for a re-examination. At their discretion, the advisory committee and OGAPS may allow one re-examination when adequate time has passed to allow you to address inadequacies emerging from the first exam (up to six months). After passing the required preliminary exam, you must complete all remaining requirements for the degree within four calendar years. Otherwise, you must repeat the exam.

Reading Lists: See Appendix E and F for Reading Lists.

II. Major Area Paper (Linguistics students)

The primary objective of the Hispanic Linguistics graduate training program is to produce researchers who are able to make substantial empirical and theoretical contributions to the field. The faculty appreciates the breadth of the discipline and understands that graduate students have different goals and skill sets. This understanding informs the policy of the Major Area Paper (MAP) to satisfy University and Department requirement that students must complete a preliminary examination during their third year.

The goal of the MAP is to provide graduate students an opportunity to enhance their training by producing a written document and oral defense of that document to broaden and deepen their expertise. In consultation with the primary advisor, the student will select one of the options listed below to satisfy the MAP requirement. In all cases, students must demonstrate a deep understanding of the relevant theoretical and empirical issues in Hispanic linguistics. Any proposed study should be consistent with state-of-the-art research, such as existing theories and previous research.

Students will have three possible options that can be used to satisfy the MAP requirement. They should discuss with their committee chair which of the options is best suited to their overall goals and needs.

- Option 1: Grant Proposal. This option is designed to give students an opportunity to develop a proposal of the sort required by the NSF Dissertation Improvement Grants or grants from other appropriate agencies. The topic of the grant proposal must align with current funding and scientific priorities. The student will prepare a grant proposal with the same outline, components, and length limit as the agency's requirements. It will include the rationale for the proposal, a pertinent literature review, research questions, planned methods (including instruments and participants), expected results, and scientific and broader impacts.
- Option 2: Extended Literature Review. This option is designed to give students the opportunity to carry out an extensive review of pertinent literature in their planned research field. The document must satisfy the requirements of the literature review section of the dissertation. In other words, it must be exhaustive, up-to-date, and well researched, and it must show the student's ability to analyze, synthesize, integrate, and evaluate critically. In addition, the literature review will also indicate the current gaps in knowledge, and identify those that will be addressed in the dissertation project. An annotated bibliography, regardless of its length, is not a suitable extended literature review for the purposes of the MAP requirement.
- Option 3: Publishable First Author Manuscript. In exceptional cases, a student may be able to fulfill the MAP requirement with a high-quality, first-authored manuscript. If the student has completed a first-authored manuscript intended for submission or has already submitted it to a top-tier outlet, the paper could potentially be used as their MAP. This manuscript should report an ambitious study or series of studies. Under most circumstances, the manuscript should be completed early in the third year. With the written consent of their committee chair, students must provide committee members a 1-3 page document explaining the nature of their manuscript, its novelty, and its significance for Hispanic linguistics at least two weeks in advance of the exam date. If all committee members agree, the student will then provide the read-to-submit manuscript to the committee and schedule the oral portion.

Oral Portion of Major Area Paper

The oral portion of the MAP will be approximately 2 hours long and will include discussion of the student's written submission. At the conclusion, the committee will issue an oral evaluation about the exams and inform the student if s/he has been advanced to candidacy or if the document must be rewritten and resubmitted.

Advisory Committee: The Ph.D. Advisory Committee is comprised of 4-5 members. As per OGAPS regulations, at least one member must be from outside of HISP, and may also be from a different university (although formal paperwork for this is required). Given the interdisciplinary nature of our program, we recommend that two members from other departments be included. For students at TAMIU and TAMUK, the chair of the committee will be a faculty member on the College Station campus, as will the majority of the members of the Advisory Committee.

Role of the Ph.D. Advisory Committee: The committee's responsibilities are:

- To ensure that all necessary requirements are met prior to the preliminary examination: fulfillment of courses on degree plan, foreign language requirement, English language verification (for international students only), and residency.
- To provide exam questions to the chair of the committee who will in turn compile and finalize the exam.
- To assess the student's written exams and participate in the oral exam. A majority of the committee will determine if the student passes the preliminary exam.

After successful completion of the preliminary exams, all five members of the advisory committee may comprise the Ph.D. dissertation committee.

Dissertation Proposal

The first step in writing a dissertation is the thesis proposal. This research proposal is a description of the research that you intend to perform in a detailed, comprehensive dissertation. The research proposal gives you an opportunity to demonstrate to your Advisory Committee your ability to successfully pursue your projected topic.

The completed research proposal must be submitted along with the properly signed proposal approval page (available at <http://ogs.tamu.edu/wp-content/uploads/2011/05/Proposal-Approval-Page.pdf>).

The title page should be signed by you, all members of your advisory committee and the head of HISP. Filing the proposal is one of the requirements for admission to candidacy for the doctoral degree.

A doctoral research proposal must be submitted to OGAPS at least 14 weeks prior to the date of your final defense.

If the research involves human subjects you must check with the Research Compliance Division of the Office of the Vice President for Research to ensure that all compliance responsibilities have been met. Additional information can be found at <http://researchcompliance.tamu.edu/>.

Dissertation

You must demonstrate your ability to conduct independent research by completing an original dissertation. Although acceptance of the dissertation is based primarily on its scholarly merit, it must also demonstrate creditable workmanship in terms of format and citation style. The format of the dissertation must meet the guidelines found in the Thesis Manual: http://ogs.tamu.edu/wp-content/uploads/2012/07/Thesis_Manual_July_2013_minorrevision_8_22_13.pdf

You must submit an electronic copy of the finished dissertation to the Thesis Office. The dissertation must include all suggestions and corrections by the members of your Advisory Committee.

During the research and writing portion of your degree, it is advisable to stay in touch with your Advisory Committee on a regular basis.

Final Examination or Defense of Doctoral Dissertation

The final examination is the defense of the completed dissertation. In order to be eligible to defend the dissertation, your cumulative and degree plan GPRs must be at least a 3.00. You must not have any unabsolved grades of D, F, I, or U for any course listed on the degree plan.

The request for permission to hold the final examination must be submitted to OGAPS at least 10 working days prior to the exam. This request form should include the signatures of approval of the committee chair and members and the department head certifying your eligibility for the defense. After OGAPS has approved the request, exam papers will be prepared and sent to the committee chair.

You must have completed all coursework listed on the degree plan, with the exception of registered courses at the time of the exam.

All committee members should attend the final exam. If one of the members cannot attend the examination, he or she must find an appropriate substitute, who must have been already formally appointed to the graduate faculty at TAMU. The committee chair may not be substituted.

Graduation

To fulfill the procedural requirements of your Ph.D. you must complete all coursework, apply for your degree, schedule and pass a final thesis defense, and submit a signed approval page and a PDF file of your completed dissertation to the Thesis Office. Please see the DGS to assist you with this process if you need help.

Professional Development

Your professional development as a student, scholar, and as an educator depends much on how you choose to spend your time during your advanced degree. Your ability to participate fully in conferences, research projects, and networking activities will reflect directly on your CV and will greatly enhance your ability to pursue your chosen profession after your degree is over. See Appendix C for some of the types of activities in which you should participate.

Time Limit

All requirements for the degree must be completed within 10 consecutive years. After passing the required preliminary oral and written examinations for the doctoral degree, you must complete all remaining requirements for the degree within 4 years. Otherwise, you will be required to repeat the preliminary exam. Coursework more than 10 years old at the time of the final oral exam may not be used to satisfy degree requirements. You must submit your final corrected dissertation to the Thesis Office no later than 1 year after the final examination or within the 10-year time limit, whichever occurs first. The degree will not be awarded if these deadlines are not met.

In 1997, the State of Texas passed legislation that limits the number of credit hours beyond the Master's degree that the State will financially support. This legislation gives Texas A&M the authority to charge non-resident tuition to doctoral students who accrue 100 or more hours of doctoral courses. See the Graduate Catalog for more information.

Transfer of Credit

If you are in the Ph.D. program, the DGS and/or your Advisory Committee may accept the transfer of up to a third of the required number of hours (32 out of 96). Please note that only courses taken in residence at an accredited U.S. institution or approved international institution with a final grade of B or better will be considered for transfer credit if, at the time the courses were completed, you were in a degree-seeking status at Texas A&M University or at the institution at which the courses were taken and if the courses would be accepted for credit toward a similar degree for students in degree-seeking status at the host institution.

Coursework without formal grades or with grades other than letter grades is not accepted for transfer credit. You must have an official transcript sent directly from the university in which the transfer coursework was taken to the Texas A&M Office of Admissions and Records. Transfer course grades are not included in the calculation of the GPR.

Full-time Status

You are considered a full-time student if you are registered for a minimum of nine semester credit hours during a fall or spring semester, six semester credit hours during a 10-week summer semester, or three semester credit hours during a five-week summer term.

Academic Standards, Requirements, Guidelines

Scholastic Requirements

You must maintain a minimum grade point ratio (GPR) of 3.25 (B average based on a 4.00 scale) for all courses that are listed on your degree plan and for all graded graduate and advanced undergraduate coursework completed at Texas A&M and eligible to be applied toward a graduate degree. The cumulative GPR is computed by using all graded graduate and advanced undergraduate (400-level) coursework taken at Texas A&M and eligible to be applied toward a graduate degree. Grades of Satisfactory (S), Unsatisfactory (U), and Q-drop (Q) are not included in the GPR. If your cumulative GPR falls below 3.00, you may be suspended from the University or placed on scholastic probation (see “Scholastic Deficiency” section of Texas A&M’s Student Rules handbook). If the minimum GPR is not attained in a reasonable amount of time, to be determined by OGAPS, you may be dropped from graduate studies. If you receive a D, F, or U in any coursework on your degree plan, you must repeat the course at Texas A&M and attain a C or higher or an S. A course in which the final grade is C or lower may be repeated for a higher grade. Although the original grade will remain on your permanent record, the most recent grade will be used in computing the cumulative GPR and the degree plan GPR. Courses with final grades of A or B may not be repeated. Any coursework not applied towards a prior graduate degree, and not exceeding time limits, will be included in the student’s GPR for subsequent degree programs.

Scholastic Deficiency/Probation

A degree-seeking graduate student or a post-baccalaureate non-degree student is considered to be scholastically deficient if he or she fails to meet certain criteria related to grade point ratio, or if he or she fails to show acceptable proficiency in other areas. If deemed to be scholastically deficient, the student may become subject to one of several actions, including a warning, scholastic probation, suspension, dismissal, or termination. Scholastic deficiency is also enough to disqualify a student from any type of assistantship or funding. Complete information and criteria may be found in Student Rules, which is available at <http://student-rules.tamu.edu/>.

Petitions

During the course of your graduate career it may become necessary for you to make requests of the Department of Hispanic Studies or OGAPS. Petitions made to HISP must be in writing and must explain the rationale for the request. These should be addressed to the DGS and the Advisory Committee (if a degree plan is on file with OGAPS). Petitions made to OGAPS must be submitted, with the required approvals, on OGAPS petition forms. Forms may be downloaded from the OGAPS web site. Petitions must have the signatures of all members of the Advisory Committee (if you have an approved degree plan on file with OGAPS) and the head of Hispanic Studies, recommending approval of the request, prior to the submission of the petition.

Some common petitions made to OGAPS:

1. Change of committee membership: This petition identifies new members, members who are leaving, or members who are changing status within the committee (e.g., chair becomes member, member becomes co- chair, etc.).

2. Change of courses on the approved degree plan: You should identify courses to be deleted and courses to be added by the official course prefixes, course numbers, titles, and assigned semester credit hour value. Pay particular attention to the final total hours the degree plan will carry following the changes. Petitions will not be approved if their approval would cause the number of credit hours to fall below the minimum hours required for the degree. Courses in which you have earned a grade of D, F or U cannot be removed from the degree plan. Instead, you must absolve the grade by repeating the course with a grade of C or better.

Incompletes

Taking incompletes in graduate courses is strongly discouraged. In an emergency, students must make an agreement with the professor, and file a petition for an incomplete prior to the last day of regular class meetings (prior to the day of the final exam, not the day grades are due). Failure to do so will result in an F on the transcript. Incomplete coursework must be submitted no later than the end of the subsequent semester, or else the I will automatically convert to an F. The date of automatic grade conversion is determined each semester by the university. It is the student's responsibility to find out when this date falls, if applicable.

While carrying any incomplete grades on a transcript, a student may not apply for departmental funds or other awards. Students with an incomplete that carries over beyond the subsequent semester may have their assistantship withdrawn.

Department of Hispanic Studies Faculty

- Victor Arizpe (Ph.D., University of Michigan): Professor of Spanish. Golden Age Spanish prose, drama, poetry, and rhetorical studies. Joined the Texas A&M faculty in 1983.

Professional Development

Departmental Academic Activities

You are an integral part of the academic life of the Department of Hispanic Studies. As part of everyone's professional development, students are expected to attend all departmental lectures and guest lectures by official speakers. This is important, regardless of your particular academic interests or area of concentration, for it allows for the ever-present possibility of networking. These events offer an opportunity to engage not only our guests, but the members of the Department of Hispanic Studies in an academic setting beyond the classroom. Students who do not participate will be excluded from full consideration for departmental awards.

Assistantships, Funding, and Travel Grants

Graduate assistantships, both in teaching (GAT) and research (GAR), are available to qualified Ph.D. students in the Department of Hispanic Studies on a competitive basis. Graduate students holding assistantships must be registered for a minimum of 9 semester hours during a fall or spring semester, or for 3 credit hours during the 5-week summer session in which they are assigned to teach. Graduate students holding assistantships must also maintain an overall 3.0 GPR.

Assistantships terminate upon failure to maintain the minimum enrollment requirement. Even students on non-teaching fellowships are encouraged to seek some teaching experience. This helps build a strong curriculum vitae and offers skills that are necessary for those pursuing jobs in academia.

Conference Participation

Students are encouraged to participate in conferences by presenting their research in a formal academic setting. When one's research and writing have matured beyond the scope of the classroom, it is important to expose this work to a body of academic peers. Though there are opportunities to present your work at various fora on campus, Texas A&M and the Department of Hispanic Studies also offer conference travel funding to help you promote your work in regional, national and international venues. This experience allows graduates from our programs the opportunity to compete with other graduates on the job market from comparable programs around the country. As with teaching experience, conference presentations help to build a strong curriculum vitae and offer professionalization that is necessary for those seeking jobs in academia.

Research and Presentation Grants

The Graduate Student Research and Presentation Grant Program is supported by funds provided to OGAPS by The Association of Former Students. The purpose of the program is to support graduate student research or travel by reimbursing students for certain expenses. Awards are limited to $500 maximum. Deadlines are as follows: August 1 for travel after September 1, November 1 for travel after December 1, February 1 for travel after March 1, and May 1 for travel after June 1.

Application forms and program guidelines can be found at <http://ogs.tamu.edu/funding-information/grants/grant-guidelines/>.

The Department of Hispanic Studies

The Department of Hispanic Studies has limited funds available to cover research and conference travel. The amount of this award can be up to $1500 for both domestic and international trips. There is a limit of $1500 per student per year. Preference will be given to students who have not received this award in the current academic year. Apply for this award by filling out the Travel Award Form available on the department web page or in Appendix F. All travel approval must be submitted online through the Concur system. See the departmental Business Coordinator if you have any questions.

Glasscock Center for Humanities Research

The Glasscock Center offers numerous opportunities:

- The Brown-Kruse Graduate Fellowship is comprised of two stipends of $3000 each awarded annually to support research toward the completion of a thesis or dissertation. Calls for this award are made in the spring semester:
<http://glasscock.tamu.edu/grants-funding/brown-kruse-fellowship/>
- The Cushing/Glasscock Graduate Award supports research projects that are based in the collections of the Cushing Memorial Library and Archives. Funding is available for up to two projects in the amount of $2000 each, tenable from June 1st to August 31st of the year in which the award is made. Calls for this award are made in the spring semester:
<http://glasscock.tamu.edu/grants-funding/cushing-glasscock-graduate-award/>
- The Glasscock Center's Graduate Research Fellows program accommodates up to ten Graduate Research Fellows per year. They participate in Glasscock Center activities and receive a $2000 research stipend. Calls for this award are made in the spring semester:
<http://glasscock.tamu.edu/grants-funding/glasscock-graduate-research-fellowship/>
- The Glasscock Center's Graduate Research Matching Grant supplements competitively awarded humanities research grants of up to $5,000 secured from sources external to TAMU. One grant of $1,000 per semester will be awarded. For guidelines please see:
<http://glasscock.tamu.edu/grants-funding/graduate-research-matching-grant/>

Appendix D

HISP 685: Directed Studies Guidelines and Criteria

In the Department of Hispanic Studies, 685 courses are special courses calling for individual work to meet specific needs of a specific student. 685s are NOT for general use as electives and must apply directly to a student's chosen area of concentration (literature, linguistics, or culture). A student wishing to enroll in a 685 must have a specific reason for taking this approach rather than a regular course.

Prerequisites are:

1. Permission of the supervising faculty member
2. Approval of the Director of Graduate Studies It is further understood that:

1. Individual consultation and agreement between student and faculty will precede this formal, written request.
2. A final report will be submitted by the faculty directing the 685. This report comments on the student's overall work, the final project, and the grade for the course. It will be filed permanently in the student's departmental file.
3. There will be regular meetings between the student and the faculty supervisor as agreed upon at the beginning of the project.
4. Although clock hours are not absolute, limiting or monitored, a general guideline is the expenditure of a minimum of 45 clock hours per semester hour of credit requested. This includes actual student-faculty contact hours as well as the time a student spends preparing for regularly scheduled meetings.
